

When the Game is Your Life, Will You BREAKAWAY?

What is BREAKAWAY?

BREAKAWAY is a free, narrative-driven online football (soccer) game endorsed by world-famous football star, Samuel Eto'o. Aimed at boys age 8-15, this project tackles violence against women and girls through a fun and interactive football game. BREAKAWAY supports the United Nation's Millennium Goals to end poverty and violence.

How does BREAKAWAY Work?

Electronic games model behavior and encourage change by allowing boys to think critically about their actions and reasoning. Empowered by a preventative approach to end violence against women and girls, BREAKAWAY combines the educational capabilities of game-play with the intense passion for football shared by boys throughout the world.

Where has BREAKAWAY Reached?

BREAKAWAY launched in June, 2010, during the FIFA World Cup in South Africa. Since launch, individuals in over 167 countries have visited BREAKAWAY's website and the game has been played online and via CDs in over 128 countries.

Help boys BREAKAWAY

Packaged with a facilitator's guide, BREAKAWAY will distribute CDs to youth organizations, football clubs and schools. BREAKAWAY is also in the process of mobile integration.

"We can become champions on the pitch, as well as in life"

-Samuel Eto'o

Samuel Eto'o, International Football Star

Samuel Eto'o is a striker for the Football Club Internazionale Milano and the Cameroon national team, Les Lions Indomptables (The Indomitable Lions). A player in the FIFA 2010 World Cup, Samuel Eto'o is the most decorated African player of all time. Did you know Eto'o is the top goal-scorer in the history of the national team of Cameroon with 36 goals? His accomplishments off the pitch are just as impressive.

In addition to volunteering his time to support BREAKAWAY, Eto'o is actively involved with his own private foundation which provides assistance to young people from Cameroon who need it most. From orphanages and education, to medical care, food assistance, and HIV/AIDS prevention, Samuel Eto'o gives back and raises awareness around the globe.

"Millions of boys and young men look up to you," said Leyla Sharafi, a technical specialist with the Gender, Human Rights and Culture branch of the UNFPA at the Milan meeting with Eto'o. "It is such a critical age where boys' ideas about manhood, parenthood and being a partner are shaped. You have a chance to impress them with the positive values and behaviors, so that they grow up respecting their mothers, sisters, wives and daughters."

When members of the BREAKAWAY development team met Samuel Eto'o, he said, "I always remember that this is the most important, to extend a hand to someone else." Eto'o is a true champion – on the pitch and in life.

Electronic Games are a Unique Vehicle for Reaching Boys and Young Men

The Game Environment

BREAKAWAY addresses violence against women using narrative scenarios to bring awareness about the issue, and BREAKAWAY creates an environment where the player is encouraged to change his attitudes and behavior by engaging with BREAKAWAY's interactive football-play. Boys learn to become champions on and off the pitch by reinforcing the value of positive choices and the consequences of negative ones.

A Game Created for YOUTH by YOUTH

Developing the BREAKAWAY Game

What do young boys across the globe want to play? FOOTBALL! Can a game convey a message that would lead to positive behavioral change in the player? YES! These are the core questions that led to the development of BREAKAWAY. This unique project was created by college students for youth under the guidance of United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA), Population Media Center (PMC) and faculty at Champlain College and the Emergent Media Center (EMC).

Tackling violence against women in the game

Finding a Balance Between the Issue and the Game

BREAKAWAY balances the need for immersive narrative, game-play and developing a sense of team membership, with messages that denounce violence against women and girls. Reflective narrative is reinforced throughout skill based football-play. This strategy is based on the Sabido methodology, which in BREAKAWAY combines play, role modeling and narrative to produce positive behavioral change.

Violence Against Women in BREAKAWAY

Violence against women enters the narrative at key points, following a pattern of escalation: from verbally taunting the game's female characters, to damaging their personal property, to mild physical violence (e.g., shoving, tripping), to a final climactic act. In each situation, the player must choose his response to these events, with these decisions affecting both the player's ability levels—as programmed into the game mechanics—and how the player is regarded by other game characters—as specified in the narrative design.
